Reports

Ride Share: Peter Maier

Peter Maier looked into liability issues pertaining to FSGW’s adoption of a Ride Share model for transportation to and from events. There is no liability issue since the FSGW organization is making no representation as to the credentials or abilities of the drivers/riders.

Membership Report:

It is difficult to provide accurate membership numbers because of database inaccuracies. These must be ironed out before data can be organized and analyzed. It was proposed that a manual be drawn up that explains the data entry process and establish entry protocols to ensure consistent data.

Washington Folk Festival: Dwain Winters

Reiterated the highlights of a highly successful festival: good weather, good attendance, strong programming and good publicity. The schedule for the buses running between the festival and the parking areas remains problematic. There was a minor shortfall in this year’s budget which he hopes will be covered by the Friends of the Folk Festival appeal in the spring. The board voted unanimously to reauthorize the Folk Festival for 2013.

Dance Report:

Figment DC has accepted FSGW’s offer to host a dance during its Washington festival. The dance committee will handle the details.

Publicity Report:

Work continues on interfacing assorted Facebook pages. Sites have been contacted that might distribute FSGW flyers, Newsletters, outreach, as well as post info about FSGW on their webpages: Culture Capital and Fairfax Library among others.

Treasurer’s Report:

FSGW is solvent, albeit down by about $3300 at the moment, but it appears that some events have not yet fully reported for 2012. The budget meeting will be held September 30.

Sound Equipment:

The board is asking various committees to inventory sound equipment so the board can ascertain what needs to be replaced, stored, mended, etc.
Next meeting:
8 p.m. on Tuesday, September 4 at Glen Echo Park.
